

The Pot Of Beans

(a poem)

It's sitting there on the stove
in a little heated cove Filled with beans, still quite firm they need to soak
for their full term.

Once the clock
has passed eight hours
the beans release
their expanding powers
They grow big
and they get fat
Ready to cook
how 'bout that?

Change the water
add salt (a dash)
now stir gently,

don't whip or mash

Let them cook
on very low heat
Towards the end
you can add meat

As the water starts to simmer you'll see the water growing dimmer what was once such water clear is now becoming broth so dear.

Add some garlic
pepper too
maybe a bouillon cube Soon enough these beans will be in your gastrointestinal tube.

Get a bowl and fill it up if your belly has room
now it's time to enjoy this fine and tasty legume.

If later on you feel taugt as if you're swelling up a lot don't you worry, it will pass it's only the inevitable gas.
